"Breathes there a man with soul so dead, who never to himself hath said—

Britain's Naval Programme

Since the early days of the war, a great change has taken place in the British navy's method of blocking Germany's North Sea, and protecting the United Kingdom. This accounts for the fact that German submarines have been unable to torpedo any of Sir John Jellicoe's battleships since the real underway campaign began. A year ago, Britain's dreadnaughts were kept in secret harbors on the west coast of England, Scotland and Wales, and north and east coast of Ireland. This put Great Britain between the dreadnaughts and the German torpedo craft.

SMALL CRUISERS KEEPING VIGIL

In the North Sea, cruisers and pre-dreadnaught battle-ships were kept constantly in the open, waiting for the German battle fleet to venture forth. The Germans came out, risking their speediest battleship and cruiser, to bombard the English coast. The inferior British vessels could not catch the German dreadnaughts.

TRANSITION OF BRITISH DREADNAUGHTS TO EAST COAST

Then came the transition of British ships sailed from the west coast to the North Sea, in command of Sir David Beatty. The Germans came out again. Beatty did what was a new surprise and there was a German race back to their harbor, leaving the Bleucher to her sorry fate. Luckily for them, Beatty's fleet was not large.

THE NEW SCALE

Since that time, new tactics have been in operation. The British battleships are in harbor on the North Sea side of Britain, and are ready for any emergency. Only a small craft are at work on the open sea; their duty is to watch the German coast, and to give any necessary alarm. Thus a far higher efficiency obtains now, than a year ago, though fewer warships are actually at sea. British warships are now ready to head off any raids, and German submarines are kept at bay, because they are not able to penetrate guarded harbors.

Dont's for Hunters

Don't point a gun at any person in fun. This is no matter for jest. It is always the gun we didn't know was loaded that goes off. The only time to point a gun is when you intend to kill.

Don't carry a loaded gun or rifle in a buggy, auto, or other kind of vehicle.

Don't carry loaded guns through the streets, or leave them around the house to have some child playfully blow your head off.

Don't forget to "break" your gun or clear the chamber when standing with others or crossing roads.

Don't drag a gun under a fence with muzzle pointed toward you.

Don't climb over fences with your gun, or lean it against a tree until you get over; put it through the fence on the ground business end before.

Don't hunt with anyone that you know to be careless. Carelessness with three and a quarter drams of powder behind one and one-eighth ounces of shot is inviting St. Peter.

Don't load your gun until you actually get to business. At all other times it should be empty.

Don't use a cheap gun. They are apt to explode when using heavy charges.

Don't rest on the muzzle of your gun.

Don't violate the game laws.

Thresher's Lieu Is First Charge On Crop

A notice in regard to registered lies upon the property of persons who received seed grain from the Federal Government, has been issued by the Dominion Lands Agent at Swift Current. The notice states that it is not the intention of the Government to have such registered lies take priority to threshers' lies. Threshers may proceed with their work with the understanding that their lieu is the first charge on the crop.

Purchase Residence

The Anglican church have purchased the residence belonging to F. H. Pearce. The building which has now been moved to a position on the south side of the English church, will be used by the Rev. G. Davies for residential quarters.

Mrs. H. J. Dennis, is a visitor to town this week, being the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Stoudt.

S. E. Peters & Son have received a stock of fall suitings which offer a wide range of patterns and styles to choose from. Our devil was so pleased with the suit he purchased from this firm that he could not resist a drink from the joy cup. He would argue that there were at least 100 styles to choose from. The result was, that in setting Mr. Peter's adyt, he got sadly muddled and selected of "NO freak style" 100 front styles, with the wording which appeared in the adyt. If you have doubts as to the authenticity of this story, call at the store of S. E. Peters & Son and ask to be shown styles and patterns of suitings for this fall.

British Remount Commission Buying Canadian Horses

For the purpose of purchasing horses for the British Government, representatives of the British Remount Commission are present in Calgary. The prices which will be paid for horses will be the same as those paid for horses of the same quality in the United States.

Fees for transport and artillery horses, weighing from 1300 to 1650 lbs., $165. All horses must be from 5 to 9 years old. After the horses have been finally accepted by the purchasing officer, all freight charges from the purchasing point will be borne by the British Government.

Notice will be given through the newspapers and by bill posted throughout the country of the dates and places at which purchasing will be held.

With advancing years comes constipation. Rexall Ointments are a specially good laxative for ageing people. Sold only by the Rexall Store, 10c, 25c, and 50c. boxes.

America and British Contraband

Through the Periscope

One of the American newspapers, which we take to be pro-German, now criticizes England in her act regarding contraband. The statement made is that "England is conducting an illegal and unjust blockade of neutral ports." What we would reply is, that when Britain suspects that cargoes of foodstuffs billed for neutral ports are en route for Germany, she confiscates them. If an error is made, the owners are indemnified. To attempt otherwise to enforce an embargo on commodities going into Germany would be nugatory.

The warning is given that if England does not abandon the rigidity of her embargo on contraband commerce, the United States will refuse to sell her munitions or lend her money, and that "Britain is at the mercy of the United States in a financial way, and as regards her armies."

These two first cars were the chief topic of conversation amongst the grainmen on Change this morning, and it was generally agreed that the wheat was amongst the best ever grown in the province.

As we see it, America would claim no more than that she is supplying munition and loaning money to Britain from the sole reason that it pays her to do so. So long as they continue this, they are enjoying an enormous commercial advantage. Britain is today not only the best customer the United States has, but also the best customer the world over, and she has ever had in her history. It is a strong probability that but for Britain's war orders, America might have been passing this last year through one of the greatest experiences of commercial panic and trade stagnation she has ever known. We are sure, indeed, that the sentiment of criticism to which we have referred is not that of America's level-headed politician; that is the product of an overhanging German imagination.

I, a member of the Leland ladies baseball team, wish to inform Mr. Robert D. Aston that the manager of the Empress Ladies Baseball Team asks, "What's the matter with the manager of the Leland baseball team?"

These players told the Leland players that the excuse the other ladies had for not playing was, "That we didn't treat them right the last game we played them on the Leland diamond."

The Leland players would like to know, "In what way were the Empress ladies treated?"

The gang for the construction of an elevator here arrived in town on Thursday night. The Alberta Pacific Elevator Company are the builders. This company, we are informed, will also build an elevator at Sharrow, the next station west of Empress.

THE WAR AND GERMAN BANK FAILURES

One of the things upon which the war has made us reflect, is the system of our banks. The British system is much different from that of Germany, and is one, further, which is especially criticised here in the west. It is a method which generally requires that the loan be covered by some form of negotiable security; and if the creditor fails, it is not the bank that loses unless there has been some laxity in the general practice. It is possible that a crisis like the present may, and does render some of our Bank securities unmarketable, and they may depreciate to such an extent as to wipe out all the "margin" or "cover," but they take precautions to be well guarded in other respects that such considerations cause little anxiety. This is the advantage then of the present system, without discussing what may be the disadvantage to the farmer and small trader. Let us look next at Germany. Her finances are in a critical condition. We need not believe all that is written disparaging the German difficulties, yet we cannot ignore certain happenings. A straw often shows the way the wind is blowing, and the collapse reported of certain banks in Germany is an indication that their boasted system of extending help to traders and manufacturers without requiring security, had its drawbacks, and may result in a severe crisis, in a wholesale breakdown of credit. So long as conditions are normal and the trade of the country is being carried on in the customary fashion, a banker may rely upon some return even where creditors fail; although in general cases a decided loss is inevitable.

German banks have been in the habit of lending to practically any person engaged in business. No collateral security has been demanded—the bank has financed the customer, and become a kind of a sleeping partner. It is an excellent arrangement for the small business man, who can thus be assured of ample capital, provided his reputation is unsullied. A similar system in this country would be appreciated by would-be borrowers, and up to a degree, might be conducted with a certain amount of safety. But in a great crisis it is bound to break down, and this is the experience now of Germany. The banks find they have been partners in businesses which have been ruined by the war, and practically nothing remains for them upon which to make a claim. A series of collapses of traders, manufacturers, and other borrowers from banks means that the latter will have to go out as many are reported to have already done.

Our banking system is anything but ideal; but it is kept free of lending transactions which can only be described as speculative. As time moves on however, we shall urge more for a system which represents an agency between the two extremes. The farmers organizations of our west are agitating along with other improvements, for reform in this particular direction. Farmer's Banks have been emphasized; yet this has not solved the problem. The time is to be when somehow, we shall have better banking accommodation for the farmer and small trader; and it may even be that there may be a similarity to the lines of the German banks, but it would appear that such a branch will have to be separated from the ordinary business of banking as it is now carried on. To interfere with the present day operations will require great deliberation.

A SUGGESTION

Somewhat in lines suggested for farmers banks, here is a sound plan: A separate institution could be formed with every bank subscribing its quota of the capital, and every bank represented on the directorate. Beyond the capital invested, no other funds of the banks to be used, and the institution to be required to establish itself on its own merits. If it proved the success it ought to do, the banks would have a good investment. If it collapsed, no stock would have been administered to a present-day institution. The German system as applied to trading concerns is certainly the one to encourage the people; the weak part is the method of its practise.

has not yet decided upon the date of Thanksgiving Day. The two dates under consideration are Monday, October 11, and Monday, October 18. The choice will probably be made at tomorrow's council.Now that it takes three cents to send a letter in Canada it would seem as though there ought to be a 3-cent postage stamp.
The Canadian public, in its stamp licking, is having to execute a few million unnecessary licks every day.—Ex.I Don't Expect to Die

If you did we wouldn't insure you. How could we otherwise promise to pay $1000 as against such a small first payment. Here is how we calculate: Out of 1,000 men who buy our policy 999 will live to pay us back the $1000 we don't know which ones and neither do we. We are safe in taking a small payment to-day as against the $1000 we may have to pay tomorrow, because we insure large numbers. Your wife is carrying the risk of your being among the 200.
